I have a problem with legislators favoring banning or reducing the ability for a paid satellite provider such as XM radio from broadcasting information that I need as a citizen to function in my own town or state. Since when is the practice of reducing competition a part of the American history, tradition, and philosophy. This action smells of monopoly and special interests. This is a sorry state of affairs if this starts to happen. I do not like the local weather and traffic. I cannot get it unless I am in town and satellite (XM radio) affords me this access. If the local radio station transmitters cannot compete with this, too bad. They already have their audience and sponsors. Why do they want to limit my choice? They cannot have my best interest in mind. Any legislator or senator that limits XM-radio will be hearing from me.
